

Work Based Learning Consent and Agreement

Work-based learning is a school program whereby students practice theory and skills learned in school by working with a local employer. Students are not paid and may be placed with more than one local employer.

Students participating in the program are covered under the provincial workers' compensation system during the time spent in the work-based learning component of their course.

Workers' compensation is a collective liability no-fault protection plan for workers. Students are entitled to benefits that are available to workers who are normally covered by the The Workers' Compensation Act, 1979.

Employers and their workers who participate in work-based learning assignment cannot be sued for injuries which occur to students arising out of and in the course of employment.

The Workers' Compensation Board ("Board") and the Minister of Education ("Minister"), entered into a Memorandum of Understanding ("Memorandum") to extend the forgoing workers' compensation benefits to eligible students while in work-based learning portions of their program. The Minister applied to the Board to extend coverage under the Act to eligible students. The Board ordered that such students be covered, upon the proper completion of the following consent.

The Act, the Memorandum, and the Ministry's Work-based Learning Guidelines more particularly detail the rights and the obligations of the students in work-based learning.
